CHRISTMAS DISPLAYS IN MACLEOD STORES ARE EXCELLENT

The Macleod stores offer an excellent range in buying opportunities for Christmas shoppers along lines of Christmas cheer for gift-giving—there is no need to go outside of the home town for necessities or luxuries.

Reach & Co. show, in their grocery window display, a rich variety of edible fruits, nuts, raisins, candies and relishes; and in the left hand window a fine showing of hand bags, silk hosiery for ladies, handkerchiefs, scarves, infants' wool cap and muffler sets, silk ties, fine dress suits for men. The window shows an inkling of the stores' diversified stock.

R. T. Barkers' display on the dry goods side shows an array of fine Peche de Chine and Georgette blouses, fine knit suits and wool gloves, ladies' hosiery in silk and wool, a beautiful line of sweaters, handkerchiefs, fancy towels; and ladies hand bags in great variety. For gentlemen is shown the finest neckwear, fancy wool and silk suits, arm bands, garters, suspenders, house slippers, etc., all this apart from the fine single lines usually carried by this store.

The Macleod Supply is to the front with nuts, candies and fruits—an appetizing array—midst package fruits including table raisins, figs, dates, also relishes; and their regular excellent line of staple groceries. This store also carries a beautiful line of gift China and glassware, and a fine line of open pattern dinnerware.

The Whistler Grocery is showing a nicely displayed assortment of Christmas cheer in the way of nuts, candies, fruits in table raisins, figs and dates, Christmas puddings and cakes and relishes, and their complete line of staple and fancy groceries.

Good Company (Macleod) Limited is showing in their window an index to their complete stock of staple and gift groceries—a tempting array of nuts, candies, fruits; also vegetables everything you need for Christmas cheer for your table.

Bawden's Bakery windows show an appetizing array of the marvels of the Bawden ovens—Christmas cakes of all descriptions—big cakes—little cakes—buns, cakes and pastries and Christmas puddings; and if Bawden's bread is not in evidence it should be in it is in evidence to appear in the society of any cake in this fair land. Mr. Bawden also shows a fine line of confectionery.

R. D. McNay's Drug Store is catering to the Christmas trade with a fine line of kodaks, fountain pens, Ever-sharp pencils, pipes and smokers' supplies and an exceptionally nice selection of confectionery. Mr. McNay also has in evidence a lovely line of Christmas and New Year's cards.

A. D. Ferguson's windows speaks in no uncertain tone of the big stock of gift sundries he carries—reading lamps, thermos bottles, portable gramophones, smokers' sets, fine stationery, China, French ivory toilet articles, jewelry sets, perfumes, books, children's picture books and fine chocolates.

John T. Doney's jewelry store window displays complete with gift suggestions showing against a background of green satin on the lower shelves and gold and silver on the higher shelves. Lines of jewelry, French ivory, silverware and novelties in a harmonious contrast of dazzling brilliancy.

R. W. Russell's display of "Gifts That Last" in his jewelry store window is truly a dazzling array: silverware, cut glass, hand-painted China—genuine Alsatian cups and saucers, Community flat ware, platinum rings and brooches—diamond set, and lovely trifles of the jeweler's art of every description.

W. G. Andrews' hardware window shows aluminum and nickel-plated ware, carvers, cutlery, safety razors, gasoline lamps, sleds, skates, fine pocket knives and many other lines suitable for gifts. The possibilities of gift buying at Andrews' Hardware are unlimited.

The Great West Saddlery is displaying a comprehensive line of club bags, valises and trunks, and are also catering to the Christmas trade with a line of fine gloves, silk and silk-wool hosiery.

On visiting the Cunningham Hardware we found displayed aluminum ware of all kinds, carving sets, nickel-plated ware, safety razors, pocket knives, skates and many other lines suitable for Christmas giving.

J. T. Marks, in men's furnishings is displaying an exceedingly fine line of special Christmas goods including silk shirts, silk sweaters, silk ties, sets suspenders and arm bands, silk socks, silk handkerchiefs, garters, men's house slippers, jerseys and sweaters, coats and silk and wool-lined gloves.

J. W. Moreash has in evidence a fine line of ready-to-wear suits and overcoats from which you could choose a most acceptable gift for father, son or brother.

Richardson's gent's furnishing store offers exceptional opportunities for useful gift giving to the sterner sex.

Miss A. M. Wilson shows a choice selection of embroideries—scarves, dollies and fancy articles, and is only a hint of the possibilities for Christmas gift buying that may be indicated in by entering her millinery store and inspecting her complete stock.

Photo make ideal Christmas presents. On calling on H. V. Clarke, of Macleod Photo Service, we were led to believe that the people of Macleod and district realize the value of photos as gifts judging from the rush the studio had on in filling orders for the Christmas trade.

The Macleod Meat Market's stock of Christmas cheer need only be seen to be appreciated—an exceptionally fine stock of Christmas substantial—choice cuts, roasts, steaks and poultry—turkeys, geese and fowl.

P. Burns' Meat Market, besides their unusually fine exhibit of choice roasts and steaks, are also showing a Christmas spirit with an extraordinary fine line of turkeys, geese and fowl.

The Cosy Corner is showing besides their regular line, a fine display of English and Japanese China, cut glass and a comprehensive line of toys also an excellent display of Christmas confectionery as well as a fine line of pipes and smokers' sundries.

W. Whitworth's book store and confectionery is specializing in toys and fine confectionery in catering to the Christmas trade. Mr. Whitworth has an excellent stock of toys of every description—from the cheapest trifles grading up through a wide range of prices to the elaborate and expensive ones—something to suit every pocket book. The confectionery department presents a choice of the best standard chocolates and candies.

The K.A.Y. Realty Co. is prepared to supply you with Christmas flowers suitable for table decorations or gift tokens of the season.

F. J. Cutler, manager of the Empress Theatre, is putting on a special Christmas programme—Tom Moore and Mary Minter in a new Western comedy "The Cowboy and the Lady," adapted from Clyde Fike's greatest play, and a Century two-reel comedy. No advance in prices. Charlie Chaplin at the Empress on New Year's night.

A. T. Leather, real estate, will sell you a farm on which to spend Christmas in 1923.

A. F. Grady says a policy in the New York Life is the proper Christmas gift.

George Seougal suggests life insurance as a Christmas gift—get a policy as a present for your wife.

R. J. E. Gardiner will insure against fire so if your house be burned you can rebuild it before next Christmas.

A dance under the auspices of the Macleod Hockey Club, will be held on Christmas night in the G. W. V. A. Special arrangements are being made for music and a number of novelties hitherto unknown in Macleod will be introduced.

PARAMOUNT FILMS CLYDE
FITZ PLAY

"The Cowboy and the Lady"
Was Famous Stage Hit

The late Clyde Fitz, dramatist, whose play, The Woman in the Case, was adapted to Paramount Pictures as a stellar vehicle for Betty Compson under the title, "The Law and the Woman", also wrote "The Cowboy and the Lady", which has been pictured by Paramount with Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore in the leading roles. Mr. Moore is seen as the "side" cowboy and Miss Minter is the lady whose unhappy marital affairs result in a great deal of trouble ere she finds the road to happiness.

Charles Maigne directed the picture, which was filmed in the Jackson Hole cattle country of Wyoming. Following the completion of the ranch shots, the company returned to Hollywood, where the interior scenes were photographed.

A romantic and exciting tale of the west, this play offers great opportunities as well for comedy. The idea of cowpunchers on motorcycles trying to rope steers, a modern idea of ranching, with film systems and the like, the rancher who dresses like a gentleman of fashion—all supply colorful moments which contrast with the tragedy at the end and the trial which results in the vindication of the hero from complicity in the killing of a dance of the worthless husband.

Jules Josephson, who scenarized "The Old Homestead", also wrote the continuity for "The Cowboy and the Lady".

Suspicion is the poison of friendship.

"THE SPORTING DUCHESS"
SHOWS FAMOUS DERBY RACES

Once each year sportsmen from all over the world gather at Epsom, in Surrey, England, generally on the Wednesday before Whit Sunday to attend the Derby races. They are famous in song and story. Many plays have been written around these races, the most famous of which is "The Sporting Duchess", which will be shown at the Empress Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. This play was written by Augustus Harris, Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton as a mammoth spectacular drama to be produced at the Drury Lane theatre in London. It created such a sensation there that the following season it was brought to New York where it had a phenomenal success.

The pictureization of the story is even greater than the play. It gets the atmosphere of England and the great races founded by the 12th Earl of Derby in 1760. They go through the name of the founder. American horses are frequently entered in these races.

The jockey riding the winner of the Derby is bedecked with a floral horse show and home from the track the hero of the hour.

Alice Joyce is seen as Muriel, duchess of Deesborough, the owner of Clipstone. This horse is entered in the Derby and upon it the duchess stakes her honor, wealth and happiness.

DUKE RANCHER

Tom Moore Has Unique Role in "The Cowboy and the Lady".

Did you ever see a cowboy on a motorcycle? In "The Cowboy and the Lady", Paramount picture, coming to the Empress Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, in which Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore are featured, the latter is seen as a "Duke Rancher."

He runs his ranch in Wyoming on a highly efficient basis—so far as office equipment and modern methods are concerned, and "by means of his card index system he can tell exactly how much the ranch is losing per month."

Among his innovations are cowpunchers mounted on motorcycles. This scandalizes the old timers, where the comedy supplied by these stunts is said to be riotously amusing. Miss Minter has the role of a girl married to a worthless philanderer.

NANCY

Just an atom in a bed,
Just the sweetest golden head,
Just a rose dimpled face,
Just a babe with baby grace,
Just a pair of soft blue eyes,
Just a cry of sweet surprise,
Just a cry, a tiny weep,
Just our Nancy half asleep!

DRURY LANE, HOME OF BIG PRODUCTIONS

"The Sporting Duchess" First Staged
in London

"The Sporting Duchess," which will be shown at the Empress Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, was first written as a spectacular melodrama to be produced in the Drury Lane theatre in London. This theater is world renowned for the stupendous productions that have been staged there. The theater is in London what the Hippodrome is to New York. Only plays of such mammoth proportions that few ordinary playhouses could produce them are seen there.

Drury Lane is also noted for its famous Christmas pantomimes, a form of entertainment seldom seen in this country. Until the advent of motion pictures pantomime was sadly neglected in America. It was found in the Russian ballet, the Italian ballet, the Austrian ballet and the pantomimes at Drury Lane.

Some of the most famous of the Drury Lane melodramas have been brought to American and staged in the largest playhouses here. Great quantities of special mechanical and scenic effects were necessary to produce the race scenes and talkies filled with play driven into the stage.

The "Sporting Duchess" created a furor in New York a score of years ago when Rose Coghlan appeared in the title role. It was so stupendous and such a costly production to transport that it was only seen in a few cities outside of New York.

It was not until the advent of motion picture, that this famous melodrama could be staged in a form suitable to show in every city and town through the country. The film version, in which Alice Joyce is starred, is even greater than the play.

NEW WALTON PICTURE HAS
LAUGHES GALORE

Universal Gives Gladys Real Chance to Show Her Ability

"Oh, divine Shakespeare, send Houdini to set me free."

The old and the modern in the annals of the stage is aptly brought out in every detail of every scene and in every title of "The Trouper", the Universal photoplay in which Gladys Walton will be seen at the Empress Theatre next Friday and Saturday. A. P. Younger wrote the story for Miss Walton with the chief idea of putting into comic relief every light and sacred tradition of the followers of the immortal bard.

Everyone in country towns has seen barn-burning plays acted badly in bad melodrama. The chance to see it again in its most exulting aspect is offered in "The Trouper". On the stage within the picture such artists as Jack Perrin, Kathleen O'Connor, Thomas Holding, Roscoe Karns, Mary Philbin and others are called upon by the nature of the story to do the worst acting of their respective careers. Harry B. Harris directed them.

But in spite of the burlesque comedy in the story, the role portrayed by Miss Walton is deeply dramatic, almost as emotional in its content as "Second Hand Rose", which changed this star in the eyes of critics from a straight comedy drama star to a melodrama worthy of the utmost attention.

Love in a cottage needs a vivid imagination.

A friend that you buy will be bought from you.

WOMAN WHO FIGHTS AS TURKISH SOLDIER

Halide Hanum is the name of one Turkish woman who has been able to get her name in the newspapers of the world as a political influence. All the other Turkish women of whom the European and American public has heard have been distinguished as heroines and have almost unanimously ended their career in the Bosphorus, their cerebents being a bag. But Halide is a new kind of Turkish woman. She is educated, a product of the American college in Constantinople, and one of her admirers writes of her in the New York Times: "We are proud of her, as she is the child of American education in the Near East the Americans are as much entitled to this pride as we are." We doubt if the Americans are ready to bid her as a heroine. Turkish propaganda in the United States has much further to go before Halide will be mentioned in any Fourth of July orations or figures on any political ticket. She will not for a time menace the popularity of Jane Adams or Lady Astor. But for a Turkish woman she is at least remarkable.

The Woman on Horseback

The Turks who are acquainted with French history call her the Turkish Joan of Arc. The others call her the Woman on Horseback. In her youth she was with Greece this middle-aged woman, who has two sons in the United States, fought in the ranks of the Turkish army. When she went to Angora she had never fired a weapon or ridden a horseback. For months she devoted herself to acquiring these practices, and her courage was that she is now a deadly shot and a good horsewoman. At any rate she learned enough to be accepted as a soldier in the ranks and shared the hardships and early reverses of the Turks under Kemal. She became an idol of the soldiers, for there was not one of them who was not familiar with her name before she left Constantinople, and on one critical occasion she is said to have turned the tide of battle. It was in important engagement, and the Turkish side of shortage of ammunition and being outnumbered, began to give way. Then appeared the Woman on Horseback, riding through the ranks and shouting once more the Turkish cry by her fervid oratory. The story says she was an invincible warrior, for friends, for oratory does not have much scope in modern warfare, but it is Halide Hanum, a legend and has helped immensely Halide's fame.

As a Novelist

Halide Hanum, after receiving her education in the American college in Constantinople, became a school teacher in order to support herself, but she was not a feminist, and her interest in education was purely personal and utilitarian. Then she became a writer, and her novels in the Times asserts that "her novels are masterpieces, lived not only by the Turkish people, but recognized as such by Europeans." We must say that there are other matters on which we would rather trust Turkish opinion than on literature, but, anyway, Halide became well known as a writer. Her next role was that of patriot, in which she appeared at the time of the Young Turk movement. She became one of the chief contributors to their organ, Tanin. She wrote stories and articles and poems for this paper, all of them breathing the loftiest patriotism. In 1909, when Abdul Hamid made a desperate effort to induce the throne, the offices of Tanin were raided and all Halide's manuscripts were destroyed. She herself was proscribed and would have been shot or hanged if she had been found. She hid herself in the American college, however, until the danger passed.

A Real Patriot

The Balkan war was a great blow to her, and she took a public part in it that was unusual among Turkish women. She was recognized, however, as a public character, and her husband not objecting, nobody protested against her showing her face in public, arranging meetings and collecting money and articles of clothing for the Turkish refugees who fell back upon Constantinople when the Bulgarian army was knocking at its gates. She could not turn the tide in favor of the Turks, but disasters did not shake her belief in her nation as a permanent and beneficent human institution. Addressing the Turkish women, she said: "Whatever may come, let us be assured that the Turkish race will not die; that it has immortal life. Even if we must stand against the world, let our love for our nation give us courage; let us solemnly covenant that in our struggle we will shrink from no obstacle or sacrifice; and when finally we close our eyes in death, let our conscience repeat the words, 'For the Turkish people, I have not slept by night nor rested by day.'"

An American Mandate

Of her activities in the Great War we are not informed, but assume that she did all that a woman could do to help the cause of her country. At the end of it she had apparently come to the conclusion that Turkey was in a desperate position, because she sought to organize a movement to induce the United States to accept a mandate for Turkey. She said that what the country needed was peace, a democratic government, agricultural development and nation-wide educational facilities. When this movement failed, because of the unwillingness of Uncle Sam to act, and she saw the terms of the Treaty of Sevres, Halide threw herself into the Nationalist movement. She remained in Constantinople and writhed at sight of British soldiers there. She asserts that she saw them rob and murder innocent Turks, but we suspect that it is her novelist's imagination that speaks here. She herself walked in peril of her life, and says that she was helped by British troops. She remained as long as she could as one of Kemal's trusted agents in the capital, and then at the last moment escaped and joined his army in Angora. It is supposed that she remains with the army as a political and literary adviser.

DOMINION EXPRESS

SHADOWS

Shadows at twilight come stealing,
Chasing dark memories away;
Love to my soul comes, appealing,
Hated and fear pass away.
Shadows at twilight come stealing,
Filling my soul with grief;
Love to my bedside comes kneeling,
Bringing sweet gladness to me.
Shadows at twilight come stealing;
Sorely my soul then is tossed;
Love, with its message appealing,
Gives to my soul perfect rest.

DEATH OF NORMAN GENCE

During the confetti dance held at the Veterans' Hall on Wednesday evening last Norman Gence, a local boy, was suddenly stricken with heart failure and died in a few minutes.

It appears that the deceased boy had just finished a dance, when, without warning he fell to the floor. Medical assistance was at once called, but the unfortunate had expired before he reached the hospital.

Norman Gence was sixteen years of age, and the youngest son of Mrs. Colin Gence, of Macleod. He was a pupil of the Macleod High School, and was a very popular member of the young set in Town.

The deceased youth had been suffering from a weak heart for two or three years, the after effects of a sun stroke he received four years ago, and it was only a few days ago that he was seized with a stroke in school and had to be taken home.

The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved mother, brothers and sisters, in their great sorrow.

FAMOUS GO-GETTER GOES INTO BANKRUPTCY

Jimmy Elliott, of Georgia, aged 22, who for some few years past cut quite a figure in New York as a seller of securities, is called by the financial editor of the New York Tribune, the man who bankrupted himself. His affairs are now in the hands of a receiver, and it seems likely that most of those who made investments as the result of his persuasion will regret it. The fact that for a time he prospered indicates that New York has not yet surrendered the right to be called the chief of jay towns. The fact that he failed eventually indicates that the stock of gullibility in the city is smaller than it once was. Probably in no place but New York could Elliott have got started. In most places he would have been laughed into insolvency. But New York accepted him for a while. The Rabbits of the town respected and supported him because he seemed to represent something 100 per cent. American and red-blooded. He was a highly polished specimen of the go getter.

Elliott's business was dominated

"WHAT YOUR HUSBAND NEEDS"

"One night my husband came home looking so ill and worn out that I thought he would faint."

When I knew there had been something wrong with him for some time, but I could not get him to tell me what it was. Finally he confessed he was tired and sore all over.

I made him go to bed. Next morning he insisted upon going to work although he was anything but well. I knew that his trouble was partly due to worry because for some months before he had been out of work. This put us so heavily in debt that the grocer and butcher refused to give us more credit. It was being out of work that worried my husband. He wouldn't eat because he was afraid there would not be enough food for the children. We were so poor that we had to keep the children from school because they had no clothes. I knew that if I could only get my husband strong and well again everything would be all right. He is a carpenter by trade and when in good health earns good wages and he is always sober and industrious. But I knew that it was impossible for any man to do power work when he was ill and worried. I decided to speak to our old family doctor, who had retired from practice. When I explained how we were situated he gladly offered to do all he could to help us, although he didn't like to interfere with the doctor's practice. Finally he said, "What your husband needs is a good tonic and I know of nothing better than Carnal." I bought a bottle and before the first doctor recommends Carnal it must be all right. On my way home I got a bottle and before the first bottle had been used, my husband was a changed man. He had taken four bottles. His appetite returned, he had more energy, that tired look in his eyes disappeared and what is most important his wages have been more than doubled and he is now superintendent of the wood working shop in which he formerly worked as a carpenter. Thanks to Carnal our troubles are over and we are once more a happy and contented family."

by one central idea, and that idea was suggested to him in war time. He realized that the average man was becoming an increasingly important buyer of securities. The sale of Liberty bonds proved that. Hundreds of thousands of people who had never invested before became holders of securities. He argued that as they sold their Liberty bonds or as they accumulated more savings they would like other investments, but that they would be chilled and mystified by the old-fashioned methods which would greet them if they ventured into Wall Street with their few hundreds of dollars. In fact, they would not go to Wall Street, and conservative Wall Street would not go to seek them out. Jimmy Elliott, however, would seek them out. He would sell them securities, either in companies which he promoted himself or were being promoted by others. Among them were the Carlisle Tire, the Man Message Corporation, Urban Pictures, United States High Speed and Tool, Industrial Extension Institute, International Bed Corporation, Daniels Motors, Business Builders and Manhattan Piggly Wiggly Corporation.

The Sales Force

Mr. Elliott was chief of the Business Builders, and it was through this organization that most of his operations were carried on. This was the concern that would sell securities in all other concerns. Its chief task was training salesmen, and it is said that at one time or another fully 30,000 of these passed through Mr. Elliott's capable hands. He advertised extensively, and hundreds, if not thousands, of men gave up other occupations and flocked to him there to be taught salesmanship, and later on to blossom out as highly paid executive officers. Every morning these go-getters would assemble in the Knickerbocker Hotel and hold a sort of service that was a cross between a session of the Rotary Club and a camp meeting. They would sing hymns specially prepared and referring to business, so that they would start the day full of pep. Then they would scatter over the city to sell their securities. They were divided into groups, each named after an American President or Statesman, and competition was stimulated among these teams just as competition was stimulated among the teams that sold bonds or gathered money for patriotic purposes in war time.

Couldn't Make Good

Once a week they would have a dinner, when they would be addressed by more or less prominent people on a variety of subjects, chiefly inspirational. It is said that the chief reason why the Elliott enterprise collapsed was Elliott's failure to keep up his staff of salesmen. As a rule, after they had sold some securities to their friends and relatives they could not sell to others. Men acquainted with investments kept away from them. Since they could not make a living as salesmen, and since no opportunities to become highly paid executives occurred they quit the job and resumed their former humbler occupations. The fancy training that Elliott was supposed to give them did not seem to create new opportunities for them. We need only turn to paragraph in Elliott's instructions in salesmanship.

of a little boy on his desk and you pass some complimentary remark about that picture and ask him if that is his boy, he will usually give you the very information you want to fit in our campaign to him. Now, if there happens to be a young lady's picture on the desk, it is probably one of two things. It is either his prospective wife or his wife. You can usually find out by looking at the picture and then looking back at the man. I like to do this twice so as to make sure I get the proper impression. The man's face will usually show whether it is his wife or his sweetheart, because if it is his sweetheart you will notice his face become very red, whereas, if it is his wife the impression is not quite so strong. Now, you just say to him: 'I must say you are a judge of human nature—is that or it to be your wife?' He will usually tell you, and you then know whether to make an appeal to him as a single or a married man.

FENIMORE COOPER PIONEER OF LITERATURE

This is a generation that does not read the works either of Bulwer Lytton or James Fenimore Cooper, and perhaps is not greatly interested in either of them. The recently published correspondence of the latter, however, calls attention to a man who was one of the first to throw lustre upon American literature, and whose contributions to it won fame for it abroad and in its way, remains unique.

His Indian stories are classics of their kind, and if they are not the sort of novel that is being written nowadays, they were admittedly the best at a time when the style of Cooper was the accepted style. The time has already come when few people read Fenimore Cooper, but the time will never come when his name will be omitted from the list of those who helped establish American literature and won admiration for it in England and on the continent of Europe.

How He Begun.

Authors as a rule, are great readers. Cooper was an exception. We are told that he disliked reading, and read even letters with reluctance. On one occasion his wife had induced him to read an English novel by Mrs. Opie. He threw it aside in disgust with the remark: "I could write a better story than that myself." His wife, the method of Mrs. Opie's story induced him to try, and he was stimulated in his resolve by the gentle ridicule of his wife. He set to work and produced his first novel, "The Red Rover." It is generally deemed his worst. It followed closely the method of Mrs. Opie, and since it was supposed to have been written by an English lady. This is no proof that Cooper had the rare gift of perfect imitation, even though his book was a better one than Mrs. Opie's.

Was Well Paid.

So successful was it indeed, that he saw good before him a new occupation, and from that day forth he devoted himself to the production of novels of which he left a rare shelf full before he died. He did not again initiate anyone, and his work was all the better for it. He entered a field till then almost unoccupied and since then neglected by men of first-rate ability. He himself was often imitated and caricatured, but this merely added to his fame. He was not only famous but his novels made him wealthy. "History of the Navy," which he wrote, is said to have enriched him to the extent of $15,000. He would have earned even more had it not been for the literary pirates of the day. English publishers did not often find American authors worth printing, but Cooper was a treasure for them, and most of the English people who read his novels in his life time did so without contributing anything to the author except their praise.

Many Libel Suits.

Fenimore Cooper spent some years abroad, and though he remained a 100 per cent. American, as the phrase now goes, he was not blinded to the defects of his own country when he returned. His first book after he came back was "Home as Found." It was more bitterly criticized at home than any of his previous works. One influential newspaper referred to him as the "most wholesale libeler of his own country." The paper, which was the New York Courier and Enquirer, and was given damages, the editor also making a handsome retraction. His naval history brought him more litigation. His account of the Battle of Lake Erie cleared the second in command, Jesse Duncan Elliott, of grave charges, but it seems to have been to the interest of many that Elliott should not be cleared, and Cooper was attacked. Again he went to the courts and again was vindicated on every point, for he was as careful as a historian as he was gifted as a novelist.

Valuable Matter Destroyed.

While people bought his books and read them with interest, the subjects with which he concerned himself were still controversial, and he had his savage partisan critics. Probably he fought as many libel suits as any author before or since, and the fact that he won nearly every one is sufficient evidence that he had been unfairly treated. This had the effect of souring him and on one occasion led him into giving instructions that his family should not publish any biography of him. The words may have been spoken on the spur of the moment, but they served as an injunction to his daughter Susan Fenimore Cooper, herself a writer of some fame, who had possession of his diaries and most of the data that would have been used in biographies. Before her death she destroyed much of this material, and had buried with her most of the journals that he had kept at different periods of his life.

Step Seed Testing at Schools.

No further seed testing for farmers will be carried out at the Schools of Agriculture in the Province, according to an announcement from the Department of Agriculture, by Hon. Geo. Hendry. It is also announced by Dean Howes of the Agricultural College at the University, that no more seed testing for farmers will be done there. For some time it has been the custom to test samples of seed sent in by farmers at the Schools of Agriculture, and at the College, but these seed testings had no official status, since the Dominion Government maintains a large and competent staff at its Calgary branch for the purpose of providing official seed testing. It has been decided therefore, that there shall be no further duplication of this work by the Schools or College of Agriculture. Samples of seed should be sent by farmers to the Dominion Seed Branch at Calgary.

Special Rates on Seed Grain.

It has been arranged that the same reduction in freight rates as apply to seed grain sent out from the Government Seed Plant, shall also apply to registered seed grain sent in by farmers to the plant at Edmonton. To obtain this rate it is necessary for farmers having registered seed to send to the Government plant, to have a certificate signed by W. J. Stephen, Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, to the effect that the seed is from crop, inspected by an inspector and eligible for registration. The reduction in rates amounts to about 45%.

New Type of Hospital.

Plans have been prepared by Provincial Architect R. P. Blakey for a new type of building for municipal hospitals in Alberta. A demand having arisen in growing communities which are not yet able or ready to undertake the larger building enterprises, for a more moderate-priced type of structure, the health department of the Government, fully equipped with modern hospital furnishings and plant. It will be of the cottage type, costing slightly over $20,000. The first point at which a building of this kind will be erected will likely be Grande Prairie, where the question of a municipal hospital scheme is still pending.

Foreign-born Students.

Thirteen non-English students have entered the Vermilion School of Agriculture and are now taking the regular course. Reports from the school indicate that the new students are making good progress.

SANTA CLAUS

BY AUNT PEGGY

Do you know kiddies it was always a mystery to me, when and where Santa Claus really originated from, and I feel sure it must be mystifying to you.

We have all heard lots of stories, that Santa Claus came from Germany; that St. Nicholas and Santa are one and the same person,—some claim that he comes from Sweden; and others from the Far North.

I decided that I would get the truth of this matter, so by the use of my radiophone, which as you all know is the new wireless telephone, whereby you can talk to anyone on earth, or even out of the globe, I got in touch with Mother Hubbard who is Queen of Nursery Rhyme Land, and who is an expert on everything and anything pertaining to the Little Folks.

Mother Hubbard very kindly gave me the following account of whom Santa Claus is and where he comes from.

"Yes Aunt Peggy; I'll tell you who Santa is, and then you'll be able to tell all the Kiddies, this Christmas.

Many, many years ago, the great Northland belonged to the Reindeer family and was only inhabited by them. They lived a happy and contented life with lots to eat and drink and never a thing in the world to worry about.

The King of the Reindeer land was known as King Reinstap, a great and handsome old deer, who ruled very justly and lovingly over all.

One day a young reindeer was grazing around some of the pines when he saw a thing on two legs cutting down one of the fir trees, he immediately asked this queer two legged creature what he was doing there, and what right he had to cut down any trees in Reindeer Land.

The legged creature told Reindeer that he belonged to the human race and was known as an Eskimo, and that he was cutting down the tree to please his little ones at Christmas time.

This made the Reindeer very angry, although it shouldn't have done, and he drove the Eskimo away and refused to let him take the tree.

When King Reindeer heard of this he felt very cross to think that one of his subjects should turn away any person who was trying to help and please little folks, so he called the young Reindeer to Court and told him that for being so unkind and hard hearted, he would punish him in the following way.

Young Reindeer should be turned into a happy looking old human being, and would be forced to make toys for little children all the year round. On the 25th of each month which was Christmas Day, he would place all the toys he had made during the year into a sleigh, and eight of the speediest reindeers, would then carry him all over the World, where he would deliver toys to all the Kiddies of the human race. His name would be known as Santa Claus meaning in Reindeer language Little Folks. Santa Claus would have to do this until there were no more fir trees or Christmas trees.

This made Reindeer Santa Claus very sad, but he started on his task and on the 25th of December he jumped in the sleigh with his toys and delivered his large cargo to all the good little children. When he saw how happy the toys made the little human beings he felt very sorry he had been so unkind to the Eskimo, and when he got back to Reindeer Land he had an interview with the King, and told him how sad he was that he had driven away the Eskimo, and the great joy he had in making toys for the children with his presents, that he would be glad if the King would give him assistance during the year to make many more toys so that he would have enough to go round to every little girl and boy in the World.

King Reinstap was very happy indeed to see how repentant Santa Claus was and so therefore he ordered thousands of his subjects to assist Santa in his great work, of making toys.

That is the reason why nearly all the little children all over the World are made happy and bright at Christmas by the visiting of Santa Claus.

As there are thousands and thousands of fir trees to be still used and thousands and thousands growing each year, Santa Claus will no doubt still visit the earth for thousands and thousands of years.

Macleod Agricultural Society Elects Officers

The Times regrets that owing to the removal of the Times plant to new quarters, and crowded space for the Christmas season the full reports of the Annual meeting and banquet of the Agricultural Society cannot be given this week. The Secretary's report and the financial statement will be printed in full in next week's paper.

The Annual meeting and banquet was held in the Town Hall, on Friday, December 8th when a fair representation of members were present. Mr. Hammersley, President occupied the chair. The Secretary read his annual report, and financial statement, which were fully discussed. The statement showed a balance on the right side of $336.26, which was considered very satisfactory under the prevailing conditions during the past year.

Officers

The election of officers for 1923 were as follows:
Patrons:—Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture; Geo. G. Coote, M. P.; W. H. Shield, M. P. P.
Hon. Presidents:—Mayor J. L. Fawcett, J. W. McDonald, Wm. N. Daymon, R. F. Munnell.
President, Chas. Hammersley.
1st Vice President, Jos. Horner.
2nd Vice President, John F. Caning.

Directors:—W. Alcock, F. Hobbs, Alex. Schary, John A. Edgar, Thos. M. Long, Phil Tolley, Elmer E. Griffith, R. B. McNab, Geo. Welsh, Ben Gaudin, Hugh McLennan, A. Weaver, A. V. Harris, Joseph Shield, Frank Walsh.

In the evening at the Palace Cafe, about 40 Members and friends, sat down to an excellent banquet, purveyed in very classy style by the Proprietor of the Cafe. After full justice had been done to the good things, Mayor Fawcett Hon. President of the Society presided at the head of the table, and did full honor to the duties of Toastmaster.

Excellent Addresses were delivered by Mr. J. C. Hooper, Principal School of Agriculture Claresholm. W. H. Shields M. P. P., Rev. G. Armstrong, Hugh Mackintosh, the President and Vice President.

Space will not permit full details of these addresses, but everyone present was delighted and stimulated by the splendid spirit and tone displayed throughout the meeting. It was the expressed wish on every side, that the banquet be made an annual affair, in connection with the annual meeting of the society.

R. F. Barnes was a visitor to Calgary this week on business.

Mr. Chappelle was a business visitor to Lethbridge on Wednesday.

Harry Burns, of Blairmore was in Macleod on business Tuesday of this week.

Dr. Fasset left for Winnipeg today to spend Christmas Holidays visiting friends in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Christensen of Taber were in town for a few days this week visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stockton.

Albert Gardiner has returned to his home in Macleod after spending several months in Champion doing irrigation work.

H. J. Ennis of the Bank of Montreal staff, who has been transferred to Lethbridge, left Monday night for his new position.

The Curling Club is willing to allow the ladies of the Town to form the ladies curling Club and use the ice afterwards. If the ladies could form about 3 or 4 rinks it is no doubt they would have lots of enjoyment. If some of the ladies would get together, the secretary would be glad to give his assistance to start the Club.

J. Swinerton was a business visitor to Edmonton last week.

Hugh Keats is spending a few months visiting his sister in California.

J. E. McNeil, of Standoff, is spending his Christmas holidays visiting friends in Oregon.

Mayor Fawcett and Superintendent Pearson were in Edmonton last week on town business.

Mrs. J. W. Kipp has returned to her home in Lethbridge after spending a few days in Macleod the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Heep are leaving the end of this week for Calgary where they will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Goodall for Xmas.

T. S. Brown of Spring Point was a visitor in Macleod this week and reports stock in the hills are doing well this winter with about ten inches of snow.

John Graham is in town visiting his Mother Mrs. J. G. Graham over the Xmas holidays. Mr. Graham is a member of the R. C. M. P. stationed at Winnipeg.

Murphy Brothers of Ewelme report that stock are going into the winter in good shape and with good pastures and strawstacks they ought to come through well.

Jerry Whitlock, who has been working for the Lethbridge Northern all year, left Saturday morning for California, where he will be working for a few months.

Mr. Little and Mr. Botterill returned to their homes in Calgary and Glenora last Saturday morning after spending a week with the Macleod Times in moving the Miclie Press.

J. Girardin had the misfortune to contract blood poisoning in one of his hands some time since from which he has suffered severely for several weeks, but is now recovering from the malady.

Rebekah Chapter No. 7 R.A.M. will hold the installation of Officers, Tuesday, Jan. 24th, 23. The meeting is called for 1:30 and at the close of the installation a banquet will be served and there will be a smoking concert. All members of the Chapter are especially asked to attend on time. All Masons are invited to attend the concert and banquet at 9 p.m. Visiting Brothers cordially welcomed.

VALUABLE BOOKS FREE

The man or woman who is acquainted with The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal never ceases to wonder how, in these days of vastly increased production costs, the publishers can continue to turn out a paper of seventy-two pages every week, crammed with the best of reading matter suited to all tastes and profusely illustrated by original engravings—all for the modest sum of two dollars per year.

An new, cupping this superlative value, the publishers announce the distribution of a limited number of valuable books, free of charge, to new subscribers and to present subscribers as rewards for sending in new subscriptions. Any one of five books may be selected: (1) "The New Farmer's Manual," compiled and published by The Family Herald and Weekly Star, without question the best book of reference ever offered to the Canadian farmer; (2) "The Family Herald Cook Book" complete, scientific but non-technical; (3) "100 of the Best Songs"; (4) "100 Singing Games"; (5) "Album of Sacred Songs." Truly this is giving value in full measure, pressed down and running over. The Family Herald announces that this remarkable offer is made for a limited period only, and the rule is, first come, first served. The books will not be sold for cash at any price.

DRY GOODS, BOOTS & SHOES, CLOTHING, ETC. GROCERIES

A Merry Xmas

AND HAPPY NEW YEAR

Now is the time of year when everyone becomes infected with the Christmas spirit of giving, when it is more pleasant to give than to receive, although the presents from dear ones and friends sends the blood coursing through your veins and heart. Be the gift ever so small, it is the spirit in which it is given.

THE GROCERY DEPARTMENT

Is making great preparations. The fruits for plum puddings, cakes or dessert, are appetizingly fresh. Every green vegetable grown in duplicate in candy. The list of preserved fruits is a long one. Crystallized Pineapple Cherries, Crackers, Xmas Stockings, Mince Meat and Cider, &c.

FANCY GOODS AND DRY GOODS

Comprising the latest in Heather Hose, Silk or Lisle, Fancy Boxes of Handkerchiefs, Fancy Stationery, Hand Bags, Beads, Girdles. You must see the range of Vanity Hand Bags, the cheapest ever in Macleod.

LADIES' SERGE DRESSES

Coatings and Blanket Cloths. Now it is not necessary to buy fancy articles for a family in want. The best way is to give something useful. Buy a Butterick Pattern and Coating and make it up yourself. See how it would be appreciated by a girl with a threadbare coat. Prices will be lower than for the past five years.
